Peter Selman has over 25 years of experience in the finance industry spanning global equities and derivatives, as the former Head of Global Equities at Deutsche Bank, and the Co-head of Global Equity Trading at Goldman Sachs. He is a world-class expert in all aspects of equity products including cash equities, OTC options, listed derivatives, equity valuation, securities lending and prime finance, ETFs and structured products.

Mr. Selman, as the former Head of Global Equities and co-head of the Americas markets businesses at Deutsche Bank, oversaw a substantial consolidation of the Equities business including a significant re-engineering of its scope, infrastructure, and balance sheet usage before its closure in 2019.

Prior to joining Deutsche Bank, he built his career at Goldman Sachs, the number one Equities franchise, where he was the Head of Global Equity Derivatives and then Co-Head of Global Equity Trading and Execution Services.

During that period, he built and managed several class-leading initiatives including retail structured products, systematic trading strategies, and corporate equity derivatives. He served on the Firmwide Risk Committee, Executive Committee of the Securities business as well the Client and Business Standards Committee.

Mr. Selman began his career in London at Goldman Sachs where he worked in equity derivatives from 1994 until 2007. He oversaw all aspects of the business including electronic market-making, structured products and OTC options. He was promoted to partner in 2006 at the age of 34 and head of the European business.

Peter is actively involved in a number of fast-growing financial technology ventures spanning his various interests in the USA and the UK. He is also a committed philanthropist having served on the board of Cambridge in America, the Sutton Trust, and the Turner Contemporary Art Gallery in Margate, UK. He lives in New York with his partner and his 4 children..
